

A large wooden traditional oil press machine is the central focus. It features a heavy wooden frame, a large hand-cranked wheel on the side, and a large wooden bowl at the top for holding the material being pressed. To the left of the machine is a small wooden stool with a woven basket on top. In front of the machine is a large, round, metal mesh strainer filled with a golden-brown substance, likely pressed oil or food. To the right of the machine is a large, round, woven basket. The background shows a wall with various posters and a display board.
